Sustainable Enterprise Conference Open Call for Sustainability Presentations

Santa Rosa, California, December 20, 2012 – The Sustainable Enterprise Conference announced today that the Call for Presenters for the 8th annual Sustainable Enterprise Conference is now open. The conference will be held in Rohnert Park, CA on April 26, 2013.

The day-long Sustainable Enterprise Conference is the North Bay's premiere networking event for business, government, education, and community leaders seeking inspiration and education about green trends, policies and products. Over 30 speakers, 300 attendees and 40 exhibitors are expected.

This year's program theme, Commerce for a Sustainable Future, provides insights for organizations and individuals seeking the latest information on how innovation and sustainability will drive the economy while preserving the resources needed for an environmentally responsible and prosperous future. Individuals working in sustainability who would like to present at the 2013 Sustainable Enterprise Conference have to February 8th to submit proposals for consideration. Proposals are accepted on the conference website at <http://sustainableenterpriseconference.com/call>.

“We believe it's important to be inclusive, and open to input from the community,” said Oren Wool, conference Executive Director. “Organizational sustainability, both globally and here in Northern California, is an evolving subject and the open call is a great way to hear about the latest strategies and initiatives. We're excited to hear what the North Bay's most innovative organizations have achieved.”

The Sustainable Enterprise Conference program offers two formats for presentation - 15 minute individual presentations and 60 minute interactive workshops. Proposals that are practical, interactive and offer lessons learned from real life experience are encouraged.
